

- 2 Conference Hall
The Conference Hall was established in March 1985 in order to promote academic programs at the university. The Hall is used for academic activities such as conferences and symposiums.
- 7 Centennial Hall
Built in 1978, the Centennial Hall houses an exhibition of one hundred years of university history in the form of photographs and documents. Other conference rooms and a cafeteria provide relaxed venues for both faculty and alumni gatherings. On weekdays the cafeteria is open and the restrooms and rest areas are available.
- 8 Sakushukotoni River
The water in this ancient river began to decrease and finally dried up due to the development of the upper area of the river around 1951. However, to celebrate the university's 125th anniversary, it was decided to bring this river back to life, and with support from the City of Sapporo, water began to flow again in 2004. It was the first step toward creating an Eco-Campus where the natural environment and educational research activities co-exist.
- 12 Central Lawn
The Central Lawn maintains some of the local natural beauty of more than a century ago. The stream used to flow from a spring near the Botanic Garden and was dammed each winter until 1935 for the skating club's practice rink. Fewer botanical species grow now, but the fresh Kentucky bluegrass lawn surrounded by black alder, elm, and maple trees echoes the tranquil past.

Front Cover: Dr. William Smith Clark of Massachusetts, USA, was the first Vice-Principal of Sapporo Agricultural College (the predecessor of Hokkaido University), and left an indelible footprint in the university's history. His message to students before he left Sapporo is well known throughout Japan and serves as the university motto: "Boys, be ambitious!"

- 13 Furukawa Hall
Furukawa Hall, completed in 1909, is one of the University's three designated Historical Buildings. Built with funds from the Furukawa Zaibatsu (study of shrubs and trees) hall contains the only remaining greenhouse, animal husbandry room, preparation room, and agricultural chemistry classroom. Displaying the nobility of French Renaissance architecture, it now houses faculty members' research rooms.
- 14 Bust of Dr. William S. Clark
William S. Clark came from Massachusetts to become Vice Principal of the germinal university in its founding year from August 1876 to April 1877. He helped introduce farming techniques suitable to Hokkaido conditions, and broadened students' minds to the outside world and to the spiritual sense of Christianity. The present statue erected in 1948 was modeled on the original which was melted down for metal during World War II.
- 15 Hokkaido University Co-op
The Hokkaido University Co-op is open from 9:00 to 19:00 on weekdays and from 10:00 to 15:00 on Saturdays. Hokkaido University souvenirs and original items, i.e., T-shirts, pencil cases, etc can be purchased here.

Campus Guide Map

Hokkaido University

- 83 Enyu Gakusha
Based on the work of Enyu Night School, established in January 1894, by NITTOBE Inazo and his wife, Enyu Gakusha has become a new symbol for the campus, heading into the 21st century. It was donated to Hokkaido University in September of 2001 on the occasion of the 125th anniversary of the university. Staff and students are able to hold small seminars, talks, fireside chats, exhibitions, and indoor concerts that will allow all members of the community, alumni, past staff members and the citizens of Sapporo alike, to relax, stroll, and interact with visitors from afar.
- 84 Model Barn
This important Cultural Property was built in 1877, based on Dr. Clark's belief that successful farming depended on spacious stables to shelter animals from the severe winters. The barn was one of nine buildings, including silo, bull-house, milking shed, and tool shed built in the style of 19th century American barns. It was moved to the present site in 1910, and extensive restoration was carried out in 1977-79. There is a restroom located outside this building.
- 101 Botanic Garden
About a kilometer to the south of the campus is the Botanic Garden, containing a museum of Ainu relics, a Bachelor Museum, and many thematic gardens. Small willow abunds in this urban oasis. (Please refer overleaf for Botanic Garden information.)
- 76 Site of old village
In the 9th and 10th century a village was located in this area where people lived in pit dwellings and used Satsunon-style earthenware, a special style found only in Hokkaido. About thirty examples of pit dwellings are preserved at this site.
- 50 Poplar Avenue
Poplars were first planted in Hokkaido in 1890's as a wind break. Many of the trees are far past their normal lifespan of sixty years, and despite the danger of them crashing down, they are an essential part of the Sapporo tourist's itinerary. A typhoon blew down nearly half the region's poplar trees in September 2004. However, support in the form of donations from many people helped to restore some of the fallen trees, and new young ones were planted.
- 62 Ginkgo Avenue
Seventy ginkgo trees line the 380 meters of Kita (North) 13-jō Street as it extends into the campus. Aged between sixty and seventy years old, they form an orderly sentinels, and in autumn, when their leaves turn gold, present a splendid view.

- 24 Visitor Center
Acting as an information center for campus visitors, it provides brochures on facilities and schools, as well as information about extension courses. The building was previously the Old School of Entomology, which was established in 1901 and is the oldest building in existence on campus. It was renovated and reopened as the Visitor Center in 2003. (Please refer overleaf for Goods Shop information.)
- 25 Elm Grove
Around 900 elm trees growing on campus, among them many giant elms dating back more than a century, draw on the abundant underground waters.
- 26 Graduate School of Science
- 27 The Hokkaido University Museum
- 44 Monument to First Artificial Snow
On this site in 1936, Dr. NAKAYA Ukichiro successfully produced the world's first artificial snow crystal. Discovery of the mechanism of snow crystals brought him the Prize of the Japan Academy, and numerous other pioneering discoveries paved the way for the establishment of the university's institute of Low Temperature Science.
- 46 Faculty House Trillium
This center opened in May 1995 as a place for academic staff to meet in an informal atmosphere to promote education and research activities, staff welfare and communication. It contains conference rooms, the restaurant ELM, a lounge and a gallery. On weekdays, the rest rooms and rest areas are available and the restaurant is open.
